WHY WE DO NOT GET MORE EMIGRANTS.

One reason why North Carolina and the South have not received a larger and steadier influx of immigration is because we have not as a people shown that we wanted it. When people have come among us they have been warmly welcomed and those who have been industrious and alert have succeeded in making money and winning friends here among us. But while we have employed an Immigration Agent and while we have issued pamphlets and books describing our resources, there has not been an earnest spirit of co-operation upon the part of all the people in the work of the Immigration Agent, the railroads and the press. There has been no cold shoulder turned to the emigrant, no direct opposition to the publication of prospectuses, and there has been a desire to sell land to those who come, but the spirit, that we greatly need and must have an influx of population, has not fully taken hold of our people, as it must do, before we can "compel them to come in" from all quarters and make homes with us in North Carolina.

We are led to say this by reason of the remark of a prominent and scholarly gentleman who, upon the return of the editor of the CHRONICLE from the Interstate Immigration Convention, asked "What did you do?" He was told that an earnest effort was made to secure immigration to North Carolina, and thus to hasten the development of the resources of the State.

Almost savagely he queried: "And what kind of immigration are you going to get? We don't want any dumping of the pauper labor of the Latin countries. Such immigration would ruin the State." And having erected his man of straw he proceeded to fight him with might and main, and with all the zeal of his earnest nature.

We didn't stop him. His personal opposition and his excess of zeal will not deter any "dumping of the pauper labor of the Latin countries"—and for the best of reasons in the world. They are not coming here. They never have turned their feet in this direction. They don't want to come to us, and are not coming. Why, then, should we become excited and declare that they SHALL NOT come? It is playing the Don Quixote act, and is so silly that we ought to make an end of it.

This gentleman is a very excellent gentleman, and a scholar of no mean pretensions. He thinks he is doing a patriotic duty, and he would be if the "dumping" which he so dreads were not purely imaginary. As it is, his opposition amounts practically to this and this only: It tends to discourage those who are working to secure emigrants, to dull the desire of the people to make great efforts to secure immigration, and to make us continue at our beaten pace of slow development. It doesn't keep out any paupers, but it conveys the impression that we are hostile to a large influx of population, and deters immigration.

We need people in North Carolina if we are to have great prosperity. If we get them, we will have to take them of all kinds—the good, the indifferent and the bad. We cannot expect all to be saints. We must throw out our net and pray that the fish may be of the best. We must remember that of the 1,617,340 people (FORSTER'S figures) who reside in North Carolina, all are not saints. Some of us who are "racy of the soil" might be improved. If we are not all saints, we must not expect that all who come will be pinks of perfection. If we have a changeless yardstick with which to measure all comers, and reject all who are shorter or longer, our population will diminish and our prosperity grow in a backward direction.

We must go forward. We must advertise our resources to the world, and we must not seek to establish an iron-clad code to which all must subscribe.

Those who will not when they may is an old saying. If we talk loudly about the kind of people we do not want in North Carolina, and say little or nothing about wanting any great influx of population, the impression will go out that strangers are not welcomed.

North Carolina is not in danger of getting the scum or the riff-raff. Its chief danger is in not getting any immigration at all on a large scale. We can double our population in the next ten years and we ought to invite people of all sections to come and make their homes with us, and show them how it will be beneficial to them.

The Convention at Asheville attracted attention to our resources and advantages. Let us follow up the good impressions made there, and give a world-wide advertisement of our resources.

SENATOR VANCE AND THE ALLIANCE.

No man has lived in North Carolina in its history as a State who has enjoyed to so large a degree the full confidence of all the people of North Carolina as Senator VANCE. He has ever loved them and served them patriotically, and they in turn have entertained for him an ardent affection. Until this year, during the entire thirty six years of his public career, there has never been a serious difference between him and the people.

Early in the year many of the farmers of the State began to agitate the Sub-Treasury plan, and at their request, Senator VANCE introduced a bill, prepared by their committee, the purpose of which was to put the plan into operation. It was generally thought, by introducing the bill, Senator VANCE was in favor of its passage. As soon as he learned that this impression prevailed, Senator VANCE wrote a letter to President ELIAS CARR giving the reasons why he could not support the bill which he introduced "by request." This letter was widely circulated, and it estranged not a few members of the Alliance from the support of the Senator who was easily their favorite. In some counties the opposition that sprang up was so formidable that it was not possible to instruct the nominees for the General Assembly to support Senator VANCE. In other counties it was ordered to submit the question to a vote. In most counties, however, the nominees were instructed to vote for Senator VANCE for re-election. He therefore felt sure of election; and his letter to Mr. CARR is not a bid for votes. It is but the expression of his belief in and adherence to a Democratic doctrine which is time-honored.

We publish the correspondence elsewhere in to-day's paper. It, as the Progressive Farmer truly says, settles the Senatorial question, and allays the doubts and disappointments which might have, possibly, pervaded many minds. It settles Senator VANCE's return and it satisfies the Alliance by enabling it to instruct Senator VANCE, if they desire to do so, upon the only question that divided them. There never was any feeling in the Alliance except of love toward VANCE and regret at their differences upon this one point. Now there will be nothing left in their hearts but love and veneration for him. Let us all rejoice that the last cause for dissension and division and strife has been removed, and that when the Legislature assembles there will not be the slightest shadow of an excuse for a squabble upon the part of any. This is not only gratifying on account of the Senatorial question, but also because it will give the members time to deal with the legislative questions with which they will have to grapple.

THEY ARE ODD FELLOWS, SURE ENOUGH.

Mr. B. H. WOODELL organized a lodge of Odd Fellows at Wilkesboro last week of seventeen members. Of those initiated, four will weigh over a thousand pounds; nine will weigh over a ton; and some of them were as tall as the trees on the banks of the Yadkin.

The sad struggle in Ireland forces the conclusion upon us that the surest use to the Irish Americans can put their money to is to provide a fund for the systematic emigration of the Irish to America. Here freedom, justice and equality awaits them, and we fear that they will never enjoy these in their native land.

The Troy Vidette has closed its fifth year. It is a bright and faithful exponent of what is best in the rich county of Montgomery.

The Reidsville Review gets there every time. Its last issue was a 24 pager and it was chock full of interesting reading.

THE COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

(Manufacturers' Record.)

North Carolina newspapers are suggesting that PETER M. WILSON, Esq. of Winston, should be selected to take charge of that State's exhibit at the Columbian Exposition. The thousands from all parts of the United States who met Mr. Wilson at the Atlanta, Boston or New Orleans exhibitions (at all of which he made a fine reputation as a courteous, agreeable and most intelligent expositor of the multitudinous natural resources of that great State), will be most happy to renew acquaintance with him at Chicago as its representative. And if fine natural gifts, extensive and accurate information, a wide acquaintance with prominent men, and an invaluable experience in such matters have their due weight with the appointing power, Mr. Wilson will unquestionably be the manager of his State's display at Chicago.

A CARD.
YANCEYVILLE N. C., Dec. 8th, 1890.—I hereby announce myself a candidate for door-keeper of the Senate of the next General Assembly of North Carolina. I have served the Democratic party a member of the County Executive Committee and other offices of the county of Caswell for the last fifteen years, most of the time as Secretary of the Committee and in the last campaign as its chairman, and now in the year of its most signal triumph, may I not ask my party in the Senate to give me this most humble, yet honorable position, promising a faithful performance of its duties?
